PREFACE.

The division of the PHILOMATHIC Society having been effected on the first day of February, 1806, that portion of its Members afterwards denominated CLARIOSOPHIC, assembled and formed a Society. From the want of an appropriate room, in which to hold their meetings, they were under the necessity of assembling in the College Chapel, until the year 1820. At that period, a petition from the Clariosophic Society was presented to the President, Dr. MAXCY, for the hall which it now occupies. Since that period, the Society has continued to exhibit proofs of increasing prosperity. Professing to be an association for promoting that interchange of thought, and that unfettered exercise of the oratorical powers, which alone can render the mind vigorous and healthy, and train the faculties of the ambitious student for distinction at the bar, in the pulpit, and the halls of legislation, it is hoped that it has not altogether failed to accomplish the ends for which it was founded.

In 1838, in compliance with a suggestion of Professor ELLIOTT, it was resolved that the sum of two hundred dollars be annually appropriated for procuring a small select library for the especial use of the Members of the Society. The Library now contains about seven hundred volumes. Annexed to it is a suitable Reading Room.

Within the present year, it was resolved that the names of all the Members of the Society be collected, and published in pamphlet form. In pursuance with which resolution, the following Catalogue is issued. Occasional mistakes may be discovered: if so, they have been unavoidable, owing to the inaccuracy of the first records of the Society. The Committee are greatly indebted to Dr. THOMAS PARK, and Dr. HENRY, for much information which could be procured from no other sources.
